Version 2 testing of EOI form

Dec 8th 2020

Martin Kerr

Anubhav Mittal

Test Summary

- We put the Expression of Interest form VERSION 2 on UserZoom, for online unmoderated testing with their panel.
This included a WORD document version, as well as an Online (WEB) version.
- We added a screener for Scottish Business Owners or Decision Makers
- We asked questions to find opinions on:
 - The EOI approach
 - The EOI form
- We tested with 10 participants

Hypotheses

To structure testing, we applied 2 Hypotheses to the research:

Hypothesis 1

- People will welcome the Expression of Interest approach

Hypothesis 2

- The form will make sense and be easy to use

The test notes allow retrospective application of new Hypotheses up to a point

Hypothesis 1: Partially supported

Hypothesis: People will welcome the Expression of Interest approach

Findings:

- People understand the benefits of the approach
- They think it will save them time in the long run
- Expect to not have to resubmit the same information again
- The online solution scores better than the word document

BUT

- Have a solution that can be left and returned to with their data still save

Recommendations:

- Clarify language around EOI vs Pre-qualification, and the exact purpose of this form

Hypothesis 2: Supported

Hypothesis: The form will make sense and be easy to use

Findings:

- The form makes overall sense
- People conflate EOI and Pre-qualification
- The ability to save progress is valued

Recommendations:

- Look at iterating on the Purpose Paragraph
- Consider an online option even if it is just SurveyMonkey or similar

Follow up (7)

Please list top 3 benefits of this EOI form approach. (use n/a if no comment)

- It allows me to provide plenty of information about the business and project It explains to me what the form is for and will do
- Service, efficient and control
- Ability to leave the document then return at a later time. Ability to share the document before submitting to others in the company
- Simple, Fast, Structured
- It is easy to get feedback on qualification
- Form was very short and easy to complete. Where questions needed any kind of explaining this was done i.e when it asked about fair working practices.
You were told what help you could expect in short i.e financial and impartial advice.
- Top benefits are to direct you to get the support you need.
- 1. Clear sections 2. Drop downs to help categorise your answers 3. Not too overwhelming
- Easy to complete easy to understand what projects will be supported expectations of reply are set out - i.e. 3 days

Follow up (8)

Please list top 3 drawbacks of this EOI form approach. (use n/a if no comment)

- Lending, Opportunities, Productivity
- Having multiple copies if sharing with colleagues
- Not allowed to give a whole lot of information. Unable to send a copy of the form filled in to yourself within the format i.e a button to click to send the copy to yourself. Not being able to save your progress.
- The form is limited in information asked and may cause delays whilst further information is gathered.
- 1. Not enough context on some of the fair working questions
 2. No progress indicator
 3. No preview to what can be offered

Summary

1. The scores improved, with Project Info and Company Info faring the best. This is great as these were identified as the biggest issues in the last version.
2. The web version scores better than the word version
3. Making the headings more discreet, highlighting the project section and unifying the Company Info section all seem to have worked well.
4. The purpose section is still weak....but it was me that rewrote it, and that shows why Professional Content developers are worth it. 😊 (mk)

Recommendations

1. Adopt the discreet section headings shown here
2. Keep the company info unified if possible (Registration requirements may cause this to be tricky)
3. Iterate the Purpose section
4. Consider other online submission options
(question list and Survey monkey etc..)
